Urban Nights, a fundraiser benefitting Urban Peak, is a celebration of fashion, art and philanthropy supporting our work to provide a continuum of services for youth experiencing homelessness between the ages of 15 and 24.

Michelle Morgridge and Nate Angell will chair the event, and the evening will feature our live talent Too Many Zooz, food offerings, a live auction and the Runway for a Reason fashion show.

Funds raised from event registration and the auction will support Urban Peak's programs, including Outreach, Shelter, Housing, Education and Employment as well as case management and medical support services. Expect an energetic celebration tightly aligned with the worthy cause of supporting some of the most vulnerable young people in our community.

Urban Peak saves the community upwards of $20.7 million over ten years, primarily by preventing incarceration and avoiding chronic homelessness.
